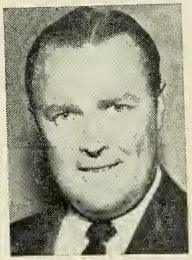
DR. H. C. "CURLY" BYRD: often called "The pigskin professor and educator." A former great athlete and coach, he values in education a sound athletic program. Head coach of the Terps for quite a few years, he rose in ranks to his present position as President of the University. His ability and workhardiness has established this school of learning as one of the foremost in the nation today.

JAMES M. TATUM: Director of Athletics. Besides heading up the football program Coach Tatum directs the huge athletic program of the University. His contacts with the coaches of other sports here at the University has established one happy family at College Park. A smart business organizer, ability that carries all the way to his success on the football field.



WILLIAM W. COBEY: Graduate Manager of Athletics. This is Bill's second year at this newly created office. His job embodies all the intricate details of an athletic program that goes all the way from pricing a new stadium to the cost of a pair of laces for football shoes. Tickets are his main job, he likes to sell them. A graduate and staff man at Terp-town for some 20 years, he has more children than any other member of the staff, FIVE.

GEORGE L. CARROLL: Director of Athletic Publicity. His job is to publicize all sports at Maryland, head up the press box and coordinate all radio and television activity. Prime ambition is to help create an All-American football player. Got married this past summer, settled down.

MARYLAND FACTS FOR 1949

Press, Radio, Television and Magazine Accommodations

This year football comes back to the campus and all home games will be played at Byrd Stadium, College Park. The seating capacity has been enlarged so that nearly 18,000 people will be able to witness games. Of these, however, nearly 10,000 will be students and they are served first.

We ask the members of the press, radio, etc., covering the game to bear with us in ticket allotments due to our limited space. On the other hand we are attempting to provide better press box arrangements and more room. Accommodations for working photographers, news-reel and video-reel men will also be arranged.

Space has been provided for special parking of press cars. Tickets will be given out and you will be notified before game time of the location. Runners will be on hand to assist you in anything.

In the enlarged box, we are attempting to have Western Union move their facilities so that they will be directly in back of the correspondents. Either contact us or Mr. Sweeney of the Washington Bureau and he will provide a telegrapher for you. It is important to decide whether it is play by play or after game file.

In the Press Box itself a competent spotter from both teams will be on hand with the Maryland man handling a small microphone to keep you abreast of tackles, subs, etc. It is his aim and our primary endeavor to see that he does not antagonize the members of "the fourth estate."

A professional statistician and chart man will be provided and working press men will receive complete statistics at the end of the half and the game. You will also receive at your assigned space a program, with numerical team lists of both squads, injury lists and all important announcements.

Typewriters, paper, pencils, coffee, sandwiches with mustard —and even such extra-curricular activities as blondes, brunettes, redhaids and after-hour club cards might even be supplied, for our prescribed duty is to entertain and assist our working visitors.

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE UNIVERSITY

The history of the present University is the history of two institutions: the old privately-owned and operated University of Maryland in Baltimore and the Maryland State College (formerly Maryland Agricultural College) at College Park. These institutions were merged in 1920.

In 1807 the College of Medicine of Maryland was organized, the fifth medical school in the United States. The first class was graduated in 1810. A permanent home was established in 1814-1815 by the erection of the building at Lombard and Greene Streets in Baltimore, the oldest structure in America devoted to medical teaching. Here was founded one of the first medical libraries (and the first medical school library) in the United States. In 1812 the General Assembly of Maryland authorized the College of Medicine of Maryland to "annex or constitute faculties of divinity, law, and arts and sciences," and by the same act declared that the "colleges or faculties thus united should be constituted an university by the name and under the title of the University of Maryland." By authority of this act, steps were taken in 1813 to establish "a faculty of law," and in 1823 a regular school of instruction in law was opened. Subsequently there were added: in 1882 a Department of Dentistry which was absorbed in 1923 by the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery (founded in 1840, the first dental school in the world); in 1889 a School of Nursing; and in 1904 the Maryland College of Pharmacy (founded in 1841, the third oldest pharmacy college in the United States).

The Maryland State College was chartered in 1856 under the name of the Maryland Agricultural College, the second agricultural college in the Western Hemisphere. For three years the College was under private management. In 1862 the Congress of the United States passed the Land Grant Act. This act granted each State and Territory that should claim its benefits an appropriate amount of unclaimed western lands, in place of scrip, the proceeds from the sale of which should apply under certain conditions to the "endowment, support, and maintenance of at least one college where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies, and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts, in such a manner as the Legislatures of the States may respectively prescribe, in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions of life." This grant was accepted by the General Assembly of Maryland, and the Maryland Agricultural College was named as the beneficiary of the grant. Thus the College became, at least in part, a State institution. In the fall of 1914 control was taken over entirely by the State. In 1916 the General Assembly granted a new charter to the College, and made it the Maryland State College.

In 1920, by an act of the State Legislature, the University of Maryland was merged with the Maryland State College, and the resultant institution was given the name University of Maryland.

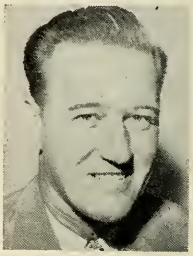
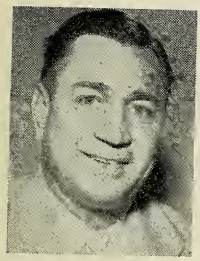
HEAD COACH: JIM TATUM (Gloomy Jim, Sunny Jim), he's been tabbed with both nicknames. A graduate of the U. of North Carolina, where he was an All-Southern Conference tackle. This is his third season with the Terps and he led them to their first Bowl Game (Gator) in 1948 (20-20 tie with Georgia). 1947 Record, 7 wins, 2 losses, 2 ties; 1948 Record, 6 wins, 4 losses. He has been head coach at North Carolina, Oklahoma and Jacksonville Navy. Assistant coach at Cornell, Iowa Sea Hawks. Played pro baseball. Married, has two children.

JACK HENNEMIER: first year with the Terps, he came from Duke where he played and coached. The "red-haid" from Georgia was one of the Bluedevils foremost centers and weighed in at 155 pounds. He coached high school ball in Savannah, was assistant at W&L before joining Coach Wallace Wade's staff. A proficient scout, and smiling personality. Married, no children.



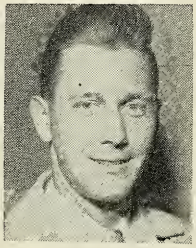
BILL MEEK: The handsome man on the staff (next to Tatum) is a vet having come here with head coach Tatum. Last year he did a great job with the frosh and will head up that department this season, although he will work with the varsity also. A grad of Tennessee, where he was a back sensation, he played in several all-star and bowl games. Married, has two children.

MAX REED: first year with the Terps. He came from North Carolina where he was one of Coach Tatum's college coaches and later worked with him at Cornell. A grad of Bucknell, he played pro ball with the New York Giants and later coached at Bucknell, besides Cornell and North Carolina. The oldest man in point of coaching on the staff, he is beginning his 20th season. Married, one child.



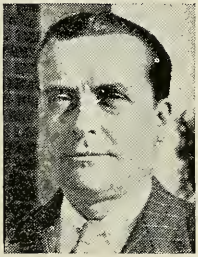
WALTER "BABE" WOOD: first year with the Terps. Fresh out of the Navy where he was athletic officer at Pensacola Air Station. Two years ago he was assistant coach of North Carolina State when they tied the Terps, 0-0. Another former Tennessee football great, he likewise brings a world of experience to the staff. Married, has one child.

WARREN GIESE: The youngest man on the staff, he assisted Bill Meek with the frosh last season. Warren played end for Coach Tatum at Oklahoma and later matriculated at Central Michigan. He is also on the physical education staff at Maryland. Not married.



AL WOODS: a football byword at Maryland. Graduate of the institution, he played under Curly Byrd and was one of the best footballers ever here. Al also played on the championship U. S. Marine teams of the 1928-29 era. A member of the Physical Education staff, married, no children.

DUKE WYRE: head trainer. This is "The Duke's" third year at Terp-town. Previously he saw service for some 17 years with Yale, Holy Cross and the Navy. President of the Conference Trainers Association, he was named top trainer in the east last year. Author of many articles on training of athletes, he is married, no children.



THE FRESHMAN OUTLOOK FOR 1949

The frosh this season will be once again coached by Bill Meek, former Tennessee backfield great who is beginning his third year with Jim Tatum. Meek will likewise work with the varsity in many important assignments.

Assisting him this year will be John Cudmore, a two year veteran. The team of Meek and Cudmore has been intact for quite a few seasons having coached together while in the Army at Fort Benning, Georgia. "Quiet John" played at Stetson U. (Fla.) and also dabbled in professional ice hockey.

Two newcomers to coaching this season will be Francis Evans and Bernie Sniscak. Both men finished their playing careers with the Terps last year and have been invited to assist in moulding future Old Line power. Evans was an end; Sniscak a halfback.

Using both the split-T and the single wing in his teachings, Coach Meek will likewise drill his charges into platoon-system football. Having lost only to William and Mary last season by one point, they went on to win over Fork Union Military, Georgetown, George Washington and West Virginia. This last mentioned game is somewhat the highlight of the season as it is played on neutral grounds, Cumberland, Md., for a Knights of Columbus charity.

Just who to watch for at this date in frosh football is far fetched and besides since the men aren't to be registered as official students until later, it's somewhat against the rule.

From the frosh, though, stems the future fodder for the varsity. Head coach Jim Tatum of the varsity looks with eager eyes to their doings all during the season and a careful check is kept of all boys, for in them rests the future of good football at Maryland.

The Frosh 1949 Schedule

Oct. 1—Fork Union Military Academy, away
Oct. 22—Georgetown, home
Oct. 27—West Virginia, Cumberland, Md.
Nov. 4—North Carolina, away
Nov. 11—George Washington, home

MARYLAND FOOTBALL THROUGH THE YEARS

(Editor's Note: The history of football here has been compiled by Bill Hottel, who for some 25 years has been Mr. Maryland Sports. In order to bring it up to date with all records correct, a painstaking survey has been made in which correspondence has gone out all over the country tracking down the true story. With great pleasure and many thanks, it is hereby presented for your perusal.)

The first 20 years of football at Maryland were the hardest and still are for the historian who strives for accuracy. About the only thing definite and undisputable is that the grid sport was started officially in 1892 and that the game, like the institution, is rapidly growing in size and caliber.

Since football was started it has been fostered under three different names: the original Maryland Agricultural College, Maryland State College from 1916 to 1919, inclusive, and the University of Maryland since 1920. Byrd, now president of the University, was graduated from M. A. C. in the class of '08 and coached under all of the institution's titles. He had been an all-around athlete in his undergraduate days, being outstanding in football, baseball and track.

There has been much confusion, and it never will be fully clarified, about the coaching of the early teams. However, it is pretty well established that the captain of the squad on the elevens from 1892 through 1901 was the playing mentor and that D. John Markey, a graduate of Frederick High School who had studied at Western Maryland College, was the first full-time coach. He took over in 1902 and remained through 1904. Markey, now a retired Army general living at Walkersville, Md., served in the Spanish-American War, enlisting at the age of 15, and also served conspicuously in World Wars I and II. In telling about his grid experience and verifying his three-year stay at College Park, he said:

"When I came out of the Army at the close of the Spanish-American War, where I played on an all-college regimental eleven of the First Maryland Volunteer Infantry, I organized a team that played games in the State and the District of Columbia in the season of 1900. I then was assistant coach of Western Maryland under Mickey Whitehurst, one of the best known athletes of his time."

Harry D. Watts of New York, one of Maryland's nationally prominent alumni, who was captain and fullback in 1903, recalls with pleasure playing under Markey in 1902. Watts, who also recalls the captain coaching system, started playing in 1901 when E. B. Dunbar functioned as mentor and leader.

While the captain did the coaching in the years from 1892 through 1901—and this also is verified by Clifton Fuller of Cumberland, who played on the 1892 and 1893 teams, and Grenville Lewis, the great fullback who led the 1896 outfit and now lives in Southern Maryland—there always was a higher authority in charge. Prof. H. M. Strickler, who came from Randolph-Macon, directed affairs from 1892 through 1897 and also played on some of the teams. He was described by Fuller as a physical education teacher who knew little about football. An athletic committee ruled the roost in 1898 through 1899 and in 1900 the late Prof. Charles S. Richardson came on to the scene to head the Athletic Board until his retirement in 1939. He was the person mainly instrumental in bringing Byrd back to his alma mater. He wasn't a football expert, either, but he knew and apreciated human values.

In 1893, the Farmers or Aggies, as they then were labeled, captained and tutored by S. H. Harding, won all six games, defeating Eastern High School, 36-0; Central High School, 6-0, and Orient A. C., 16-6, all of Washington; Baltimore City College, 18-0; St. John's College of Annapolis, 6-0, and Western Maryland, 18-0.

One of the most confusing factors in efforts to unravel the Old Line football puzzle of yesteryears is that in the early days of the game the Medical School in Baltimore had a team. In fact, M. A. C. and the Medical School met seven times, according to our records, each winning three games and playing a tie. However, the trouble arises from Maryland's opponents, some of whom whipped the Medical School and wanted to charge it against the College Park Institution. Most of this, we believe, finally has been ironed out, making the records against our present rivals as correct as possible.

But getting back to those unbeaten seasons, M. A. C. had another in 1896 when the team was led and coached by Lewis, rated an all-time great on the diamond as well as on the gridiron. Mainly on the strength of his own skill and fortitude, Business High and Central High of Washington were beaten, 34-0, and 10-0; Bethel Military Academy, 20-0; Alexandria High, 18-0; Western Maryland, 16-6, and the Maryland Medical School and Gallaudet College elevens were held to scoreless ties. Lewis also had to do some reorganization work as there was no football in 1895 due to a dispute with the M. A. C. commandant. In fact, there practically was no competition at all during the 1895-96 term.

Byrd came closest to a sweep in 1931 when the Old Liners won eight games, tied the powerful Kentucky team that contained Shipwreck Kelly and other noted stars, and lost only to Vanderbilt at Nashville. Navy was one of the victims and this was the team that wrecked the Dick Harlow coached Western Maryland juggernaut, 41-6. Seven of the starters were all-State choices—Al Pease, end; Ernie Carliss, tackle; Jess Krajcovic, guard, and the entire backfield of Ray Poppleman, Bozie Berger, Shorty Chalmers and Al Woods, the same balding burnt-almond haired guy who is still holding forth in football and physical education at College Park.

Another noted old Terp, as player and coach, is Burton Shipley, who has "earned his oats" on past performances, not to mention his present worth. He was a stripling when Byrd came back to College Park and was one of Curley's foremost all-around athletes for several years, the only Old Liner to ever win six letters in both football and baseball. There were prep and sub-freshman years in those days in addition to four collegiate terms. Ship quarterbacked the eleven in that startling 6-0 win over Western Maryland in 1911, scoring the only touchdown. Byrd was special coach for that game and the triumph blazed the trail for his permanent return to his alma mater and subsequent fame. Burt, who also is in the Physical Education Department, has tutored the varsity nine for 26 years and handled basketball for 24 years before giving it up.

And also outstanding in that old regime, and still the best lacrosse coaching pair in the country, are Jack Faber and Al Heagy, who along with Woods, were the highly capable and willing "lambs" whenever a snarl occurred in the football coaching set-up. They with the late Roy Mackert, equally great as a fullback and tackle in his grid days, were Byrd's righthand men who carried on gracefully when material, as a whole, was far from being as plentiful and proficient as nowadays. However, to us old-timers, those were the happy days when Byrd was content to win 60 percent of his games with the added relish of upsetting one of the big-timers most every season, such as Penn, Yale, Syracuse, Rutgers, etc.

And on the famous 1923 team, that whipped Penn and greatly outplayed and came within an ace of licking Yale's Eastern championship eleven that had routed all other opposition, were five linemen who never had played football before matriculating at College Park. The score was 16-14, Yale. All the writers said it should have been 28-10, Maryland. And the Bill Supplee, who played on that team and who was chosen All-America end by three leading authorities, is the same Dr. Supplee who is a valued professor on the University faculty and a mmber of the Athletic Board.

And in mentioning the old-timers, and space limits us to a few, we certainly should not overlook United States Senator Millard E. Tydings, a member of the Board of Regents, who managed the 1908 eleven and Dr. Ernie Cory, who captained it. Dr. Cory, a familiar figure around the campus, is State entomologist, an Athletic Board member for many years and perennial treasurer of the "M" Club.

And getting down to present day football, it certainly has become pretentious and complex. Where if you had a fairly good starting line-up and a half-dozen reserves in Byrd's day and a good many years following you were considered well fixed, we have reached the stage of 44 varsity players, sometimes 55, the two platoon system, one for defense and the other for offense, and unlimited substitutions.

But to get back to the historical angle, which we were supposed to write about, George Hoblitzell, of whom we have no real background, was the organizer of football at College Park. While a student he formed an informal team in 1888 that continued through 1897 and played several games with minor teams. It also is noteworthy that Dr. W. W. Skinner of Kensington, Md., now retired, and former chairman of the Board of Regents, was captain and quarterback of the first team in 1892 and generally active in fostering M.A.C. athletics during his undergraduate days

Big Jim Tatum is beginning his third football season here at Maryland. He came to Terp land from Oklahoma where he had an enviable record. In his first year with Maryland his record was seven wins, two defeats and two ties. The season brought an invitation—and eventual tie-game—with Georgia (20-20) in the 'Gator Bowl. This was the first Bowl game in which a Terp 11 had ever participated.

One of the most publicized, if not one of the greatest backs in Maryland history, was also produced on that 1947 aggregation in the person of Lu Gambino. His career was closed for 1948, however, when he was declared ineligible. This hurt the Terps' running attack and perhaps played the major part in the six win, four loss record for 1948.

However, with an eye for the future, Tatum has supplemented his already experienced staff for 1949 with three very competent and top coaches in Jack Hennemier, Max Reed and Babe Wood. He has also on tap another possible football great in Ray Krouse, giant tackle.

Other top men to look for are Bob Ward, guard of distinction, and Jim Brasher, center. Filling that offensive center post will be most important and it still is a toss-up. Good sophs to look at are linemen Bill Dovell, Chick Fry, Charles Theiber and backs "Mighty Moe" Modzelewski, Buck Early, Walt Boeri, Shoo-shoo Shemonski and several others.
